Carlo Magno Zeledria Hotel: A history of over a century

The exact date of origin for Hotel Zeledria is lost in the beginning of the last century, when Madonna di Campiglio was part of the Austro-Hungarian empire and destination of choice for the Hapsburg aristocracy. It seems that the hotel already existed in 1907, as evidenced on a piece of wood found during the refurbishment in 1980: it was probably built as a refuge for workers of the neighbouring valleys that came in search of wood and good pasture grounds. The Zeledria was then transformed into a locanda by Gregorio Alberti, a humble and capable resident of Val Rendena.

In the course of history, the Zeledria witnessed many events: in the 1930's it saw the passage of Prince Albert and the Italian hierarchy and in the 1940's it was occupied by German soldiers who, on the rooftop, organized an anti-aircraft position with machine gun turret to intercept Allied bombers. In 1942 the hotel was bought by Giovanni Sala, a businessman from Lombardy. He gave the impetus to winter tourism that was unknown until that time; in fact in 1947 the Zeledria was one of the first hotels to open for New Year's Eve.

That same year more than 60 years ago, the Zeledria was bought by Vigilio Maturi, father of Franco, the current owner of the hotel. In the 1930's Vigilio, a modest local knife sharpener, emigrated with his family to the United States to seek his fortune. In Detroit hard-working Vigilio made his fortune opening a supermarket that was quite successful; however nostalgia drew Vigilio back to his homeland on the mountains where he decided to purchase hotel Zeledria. The Maturi family has kept the hotel in their hands for decades, keeping it always up to date, yet true to the tradition, a belief that Franco Maturi held firmly, transforming the Zeledria to Carlo Magno Hotel SPA & Resort, a spa resort deeply rooted in the region. And the story still continues...
